Hip Hop figure Snoop Dogg again is having troubles with law enforcement.

After being arrested last week at Bob Hope Airport in Burbank, California on gun and marijuana charges and released on $35,000 bail, the West Coast hip hop legend Snoop Dogg, aka Calvin Broadus, again is a wanted man by police officials.

An arrest warrant has been issued for the hip hop artist on the charge of possession of a deadly weapon (a collapsible metal baton) stemming from an incident at another airport a little over a month ago.

The hip hop artist has been asked to surrender to officials. Orange County District Attorney's Office spokeswoman Susan Schroeder said "He either turns himself in or he gets picked up by law enforcement."

The hip hop figure faces 3 years in prison if convicted on this charge. Snoop is on bail for the incident at the Bob Hope Airport in Burbank and has a date to appear in court December 12th to answer those charges.
