Rap legends Bullys Wit Fullys are back. San Francisco street legend turned rap artist, Guce, is teaming up with underground rap legend Messy Marv to release the upcoming 'The Infrastructure' on Git Paid'/SMC Recordings. The first single from the album, 'So Hood' guest stars Clyde Carson (from the Team) and features production from acclaimed Bay Area legends E-A-Ski and CMT.

"We got the hottest record for the streets this summer (with the single) so we just wanted to capture that, we grabbed the cameras and hit the black-top wit it and kept it 'So Hood', says one half of the duo, Guce, who not only stars in the video but also co-directed as well.

The hype behind the group has reached outside the Bay Area and the proof is in their amazing press campaign. They will be featured on the cover of July (and) August issues of Murder Dog, Xplosive and Ruckus Magazines (respectfully) and have upcoming reviews in Scratch and XLR8R to name a few.

Bullys Wit Fullys first hit the scene in 1999, but the group decided to take a break after losing a number of their friends to gang violence. Bullys Wit Fullys returned with Bullys Wit Fullys 2, which spawned the hit single 'What It Do' featuring The Game. The current release, 'The Infrastructure' features the talents of hip-hop and rap artists Keak the Sneak, Yukmouth, Killa Keise, Swoop, Mr. 1, C. Luciano and all of the new artists signed to Git Paid Music Group, Guce's own label.

The album is an eclectic mix of sounds and flavors. It serves as a springboard for the introduction of 'hyphy' music into the mainstream. The Infrastructure already has the industry a buzz, Make sure you don't miss out on the hype.
