

Another Suit Filed Against Lil' Flip

Written by Westside ID357

Wednesday, 10 November 2004 05:45 -

Rapper & hip-hop star Lil' Flip has been slapped with another lawsuit for copyright infringement.

According to reports, songwriter and producer Tommy Granville is suing the rapper for $1.5 million in damages and an unspecified amount for alleged willful infringement of Granville's copyrights.

The suit alleges that Flip used three of Granville's melodies, without permission, for his Columbia debut "Undaground Legend."

Earlier this year, Namco America filed a $10 million lawsuit against rap / hip hop artist Lil Flip for sampling sounds from its classic video game franchise Pac-Man on his hit song "Game Over."